TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

In 2014 I worked with Amar Guriro for approximately one month, on a story for the Australian Broadcasting Corporation about the polio epidemic in Karachi. We were a team of three Australians making half an hour of television, and it was a very challenging environment.

Amar researched our story, set it up, did all the translations in the field as well as some afterwards, and was altogether an excellent and totally reliable collaborator with lots of good contacts and ideas. I always felt totally safe in his hands. He has also researched a number of other stories for me as well.

We paid Amar $US300 per day in the field.

Please feel free to contact me if you have any questions.
